Update on report development for nDay in Hospitals and Nursing Homes

Currently, the data collected in hospitals in November 2016 and February 2017 is being used to create the new “Smart Report” that helps your unit interpret the results by providing context. The Smart Report will provide more graphical, statistical, and contextual descriptions that are meant to help units assess what areas can be improved upon and what areas are consistent or better than current practice described in nutrition care literature, current practice guidelines, and reference data.

We initially planned on providing you with preliminary reports in the meantime but are very sorry to inform you that due to the already announced delays during the development process we have to postpone the availability of the preliminary report for an indefinite period.

The new reports for participants in nursing homes are already developed and will be available to participants soon.

We'd like to apologize for the inconvenience and ask for your loyalty and patience during this time of transition and welcome any feedback or questions. We hope you will find our future reports useful and relevant.
