Insights from our experts

With less than two weeks until the Best of Postgraduate Teaching from UEG Week, we have collected further input from our experts just for you - the members of our community. See what three renowned faculty, including the UEG Vice President want you to know.

“Participating in the Best of Postgraduate Teaching from UEG Week, you will have the opportunity to be updated in the most important areas of Gastroenterology, through experts, who will review the topics for you. You will also be able to attend clinical case-based sessions to discuss real cases. You will have time to ask your questions and interact with best experts.

In the session of NAFLD and ALD we will discuss the more hot topics, regarding these two liver diseases, that are now the more frequent liver diseases, worldwide. Besides important topics regarding epidemiology and treatment, also the interrelation between these two diseases will be discussed.”

Helena Cortez-Pinto, UEG Vice President, Portugal. Chair in the session: Non-alcoholic fatty liver disease \(NAFLD\) and alcoholic liver disease \(ALD\), Friday, November 27, 16:00 – 17:30 CET

"Participants will get the key recent messages on malnutrition by experts in the field. My talk will help you choose which type of nutritional support to offer and when to use it."

Stéphane Schneider, France. Speaker in the session: Diagnosis and treatment of malnutrition, Saturday November 28, 15:00 – 16:30 CET

“UEG Week and the Best of Postgraduate Teaching are the best places where gastroenterologists can learn how to improve the quality of their activities, to provide the best management for their patients. They can additionally learn how to manage GORD. As one of the main conditions which leads patients to Gastroenterology consultation, it is one of the most important to know!”

Edoardo Vincenzo Savarino, Italy. Speaker in the session: GORD, Saturday, November 28, 09:00 – 10:30 CET
